

“Man is least himself when he talks in his own person. Give him a mask, and he will tell you the truth.” – OSCAR WILDE

“Deep into that darkness peering...”
The Dark Side of Literature

“I knew nothing but shadows and I thought them
to be real.”

Oscar Wilde, The Picture of Dorian Gray

Oscar Fingal O’Flahertie Wills Wilde (1854-1900) was born in Dublin, Ireland. He became both famous and notorious in Victorian England for his writings, as well as for his lifestyle. Besides his unsettling and controversial The Picture of Dorian Gray, Wilde also wrote short stories and a few remarkable plays.
