Questions for Essay and Discussion

1. Discuss the type of humor in this story, and explain why it was appealing to children in Victorian times and why it remains appealing to adults and children today. Cite incidents from the story to support your answer.

2. Select two social issues important during the time period in which Carroll wrote Alice’s Adventures in Wonderland. Cite incidents from the story illustrating how he satirizes these issues.

3. Describe the character of the Cheshire Cat and the role he plays in the story. Why do you think Carroll chose to make a cat the one character in Wonderland that is most helpful to Alice?

4. When Alice first arrives in Wonderland, she insults everyone she speaks with, but eventually she learns how to talk to the animals without insulting them. Discuss how these interactions mirror Alice's real life.

5. What makes Alice’s Adventures in Wonderland a coming-of-age story? Describe the ways in which Alice changes or matures over the course of the novel. Cite examples from the text that demonstrate her transition from childhood to the early stages of adulthood.

6. Why do you think Carroll chose to make the characters and situations in Wonderland illogical and deliberately misleading? Describe the tactics that Alice uses to cope with the bizarre things she encounters there.

7. Explain the significance of Alice’s plunge down the rabbit-hole. How can the rabbit-hole be understood in metaphorical terms? What does it symbolize?

8. When Alice first arrives in Wonderland, she finds herself in a hallway. All of the large doors in the hallway are locked and the only door for which she has a key is too small for her to fit through. Explain the symbolic significance of Alice’s situation here. What do the doors represent?

9. Identify at least two instances in the text in which Alice changes in size. What causes her to change? Which of the novel’s motifs is emphasized by her continual changes in size?

10. At several points during the story, Alice finds herself questioning her own identity. What causes her to do so? Why is she confused about her identity throughout much of the novel?

11. Describe the Caucus-Race. How does Carroll use it to satirize political races?
